Dick rallies to Kelvin Thomson's cry: "Down with Australia!"

Dick Smith says he has a million reasons Aussies should work out ways to eliminate each other, but if you're thinking of signing up, beware—even his millionaire mate John Singleton said, "if I know Dick, no-one's gonna get the million dollars ... there'll be so many conditions I wouldn't bother entering."

Nevertheless, it's not an issue Dick's pushing lightly—he's the latest and loudest recruit to the campaign of Kelvin Thomson and the Australian Conservation Foundation (ACF) to depopulate Australia; "I'm a disciple of Kelvin Thomson," he told Channel 10's 9th August The 7pm Project. To see the ACF at work turn over the page.

(And in what appears to be the first-ever case of paid advertising on the ABC, Dick Smith has paid part of the production costs for the doco the ABC will air about his campaign on Thursday night.)

Founded in 1963 by the cranky old coot—Prince Philip—whose fantasy is to be reincarnated as an Ebola-type virus to exterminate people, the ACF in recent years spun off Sustainable Population Australia (SPA) to spearhead a campaign to get rid of Australians.

Open about its desire to "reduce" the population, SPA advocates a Chinese-style one child policy as one method to achieve it.

The ALP Member for Wills, Kelvin Thomson, works closely with SPA, and encourages Australians to join SPA as members; Thomson's pet mantra—that we can't reduce our carbon footprint without reducing the number of footprints—echoes SPA's stated goal.

Thomson, who stars in Dick's doco, has also thrown his weight behind the ACF's campaign to lobby Environment Minister Peter Garrett—a former two-time president of the ACF—to legally classify human population growth as a "key threatening process" to biodiversity, under the same classification as feral cats and cane toads.

Citizens Electoral Council leader Craig Isherwood,

Thomson's main opponent in the electorate of Wills for the 21st August election, today declared that Dick Smith, Kelvin Thomson and the ACF/SPA are preying on the people, literally.

"Australians are being circled by this pack of vultures, who would be happy if a whole chunk of the population just died off," he said. "The only word for public policy based on that worldview is genocide."

Craig continued, "They are preying on the public's ignorance about how human society functions. Contrary to 40 years of Royal-funded greenie propaganda, human beings are not animals with a set population limit, or carrying capacity.

"Rather, as measurable by Lyndon LaRouche's concept of relative potential population density, our unique creativity as human beings equips us to make scientific discoveries of universal principles, which, when applied to society through new technologies, enables us to support a growing population at ever higher standards of living—that is the history of the world.

"However," he explained, "society only functions this way if the government is truly committed to the common good of the people, and invests in the long-term infrastructure and essential industries that meet the people's needs.

"As well, contrary to greenie lies, when human society is organised this way, we are not a threat to the environment, but the key force in organising the biosphere to higher modes of organisation and power." (To read this concept elaborated in "NAWAPA from the standpoint of Biospheric development" go online http://cecaust.com.au/main.asp?sub=articles&id=2010_08_05_biospheric.html)

Craig concluded, "By definition, the 'overpopulation' crowd believes that most of the children in the world today should never have been born; if you, however, believe your children deserve a decent future, join the CEC."
