Labor traitor Gillard plans 'kill the people' bank

One hundred years after the great Australian Labor Party established the Commonwealth Bank as the "people's bank", the British Fabians who have hijacked the ALP, led by Julia Gillard, have designed a "kill the people" bank.

Whereas in 1911 Labor MP King O'Malley—an American immigrant—created the Commonwealth Bank as a U.S.-style national bank to finance national economic development for the common good of all Australians, Julia Gillard has made the centrepiece of her carbon tax package a $10 billion Clean Energy Finance Corporation to force Australians to use less energy whether they want to or not, by replacing reliable base load power sources with inefficient, intermittent windmills and solar panels.

The "kill the people" carbon bank will fund the exorbitant construction costs of headache-inducing wind farms, and planet-warming solar arrays, but it will not fund nuclear energy, the only economically-efficient source of base load power that doesn't emit carbon dioxide (an unimportant fact, but relevant to those genuinely looking for energy alternatives, and not just to drive humans into a dark age).

As demonstrated in the LPAC-TV video The Fraud of Free Energy, not only are wind power and solar power notoriously unreliable, they have far lower energy-density than coal, oil and especially nuclear, so they require far greater areas of land and levels of investment to produce equivalent volumes of energy, making them a backward leap to the inefficient forms of energy of past centuries.

In other words, the actual goal of this policy is not the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions per se, but the reduction of people, using "carbon reduction" as the excuse to force people to go without reliable power supplies and suffer a sharp fall in living standards for which there can be no compensation: less warmth in winter cold snaps and less cooling in summer heat waves, accompanied by a spike in diseases of poverty such as respiratory illnesses, heat stroke, food poisoning from poor refrigeration, and a cascade of other physical flow-on effects.

The hundreds of workers at the Hazelwood power station who lose their jobs when Victoria's second biggest power station is forced to shut down under this policy will eventually be followed by tens of thousands of people who lose their lives.

Devising such calculated schemes to kill off masses of people has long been the domain of those obsessed with population reduction, from the British East India Company's Thomas Malthus, to Fabians H.G. Wells, George Bernard Shaw and Lord Bertrand Russell, to Prince Philip.

It's the Queen!

Gillard's policy of a forced decarbonisation of the economy without allowing any recourse to nuclear power is exactly the plan announced in March by the German Advisory Council on Global Change (WBGU), the joint German-British climate policy body opened by Queen Elizabeth in 2004, and headed by the Queen's personal climate change envoy, Professor Hans Schellnhuber CBE, to achieve the Queen and Prince Philip's oft-stated goal of drastic population reduction.

Gillard's carbon tax scheme aligns Australia to the Queen's radical British-German policy by setting the price at the EU's average traded price of $23 per tonne, and adopting the same emissions reduction target as the British and Germans—80 per cent on 2000 levels by 2050. Gillard is so personally oriented to the British policy she even cited Margaret Thatcher—the enemy of working people—in the opening sentences of her midday announcement. Royal envoy Hans Schellnhuber's current visit to Australia coincides with the release of the carbon tax policy he has so heavily influenced.

'Climate science' priest issues death threat

Citizens Electoral Council activists last week presented British Royal envoy and high priest of the carbon cult, Prof. Hans Schellnhuber, with a "carbon friendly" rope—a hangman's noose—to signify the actual intent of his crusade to "decarbonise" the world economy. As reported in The Australian, and Schellnhuber himself later squealed that this constituted a "death threat".

Citizens Electoral Council and LaRouche Youth Movement (LYM) activist Glen Isherwood had interrupted Prof. Schellnhuber's public lecture at Melbourne University on 12th July to offer him the carbon-friendly rope. Mr Isherwood explained afterwards that "the carbon-friendly rope was a metaphor for the clear agenda behind the fraud of climate change: to reduce the world's population."

Prof. Schellnhuber himself had emphasised that this is the agenda, when he told a 13th March, 2009 pre-meeting of the Copenhagen Climate Change summit of his intent to reduce the world's population. After lying that unless all fossil fuel and nuclear power consumption were shut down immediately, the Earth's temperature would rise by 9°F soon, he declared:

"In a cynical way, it's a triumph for science, because at last we have stabilised something—namely the estimates for the carrying capacity of the planet, namely below one billion people."

So who is it who has actually issued a death threat?

Weeks after the March 2009 meeting, Schellnhuber had a Bertrand Russell moment. Schellnhuber's Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research (PIK) press release on the beginning of the Nobel Laureate Symposium on Global Sustainability, hosted by Prince Charles at his St. James Palace in late May 2009, chose to quote the PIK head proudly proclaiming that he saw his work as in the tradition of Bertrand Russell.

Russell was also an advocate for reducing the world's population. He wrote in a 1952 work, The Impact of Science on Society:

"[B]ad times, you may say, are exceptional, and can be dealt with by exceptional methods. This has been more or less true during the honeymoon period of industrialism, but it will not remain true unless the increase of population can be enormously diminished. At present the population of the world is increasing at about 58,000 per diem. War, so far, has had no very great effect on this increase, which continued throughout each of the world wars. ... War ... has hitherto been disappointing in this respect, but perhaps bacteriological war may prove more effective. If a Black Death could be spread throughout the world once in every generation survivors could procreate freely without making the world too full. ... The state of affairs might be somewhat unpleasant, but what of that? Really high-minded people are indifferent to happiness, especially other people's."

After Mr Isherwood was denied the opportunity to present Prof. Schellnhuber with his gift, Schellnhuber felt forced to justify his 2004 acceptance of a Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE), by Queen Elizabeth II. If the CBE weren't a crucial issue, why did he feel compelled to raise it?
